TACTICAL LEADERSHIP: CRITICAL THINKING ON ACTIVE INCIDENTS

Violence towards the general populace, as well as law enforcement, is currently approaching record levels. Police officers are forced to make split-second decisions in a time where they will be heavily scrutinized and second-guessed in the aftermath. This program will focus on the development of critical thinking skills needed to make quick and accurate decisions during in-progress, rapidly changing high-priority and violent calls. This course is not only designed for the first supervisor on scene, but also any first arriving officer faced with the reality of making life-threatening decisions for themselves and others. Topics that will be covered include:

- First on the Scene, Remember CPR: Containment, Point & React
- Profile Recent Actual Active Shooter Events
- What went wrong at Uvalde?
- What is critical thinking?
- Characteristics of critical thinkers
- Critical thinking first-line supervisors
- Stress and your ability to make decisions
- Armed barricaded subject(s)/Setting perimeters
- Approaching unknown/suspicious subject(s)
- Staging "hot calls"
- The ambush
- The mentally incapacitated
- Officer-involved shootings first on scene and your response
- Active threat/shooter response and training
